Froggie Five-0 to get new carts

MEL MORRIS

STAFF WRITER, TCU 360

Froggie Five-0 will add two new carts to its line up next month after complaints from drivers about the carts' condition, Assistant Vice Chancellor of Public Safety Adrian Andrews said.

"The older carts had gotten to the point that they were always being repaired," Andrews said. "We wanted to make sure that our young people have the best transportation that they need."

The new carts will look exactly the same but will ride smoother, Andrews said.

The Froggie carts are in poor condition because drivers drive off curbs and crack the axles and do not take care of maintenance, Andrews said.

Andrews said that new carts are purchased every four to five years due to this typical wear and tear.

"Some of them break down so much that they're in the shop more than they're being used, so it's about time," said Kenny Houston, the head supervisor of Froggie Five-0.

The current Froggie Five-0 drivers receive specific training about maintenance and safety rules at the beginning of each year, which is a new policy. This will eliminate unnecessary servicing of the vehicles and give the carts a longer shelf life.

Two of the nine previous carts will be retired before the new ones are added, Andrews said.

A Froggie Five-0 driver at the intersection on University Drive.

"We will probably have the new ones for about four to five years and we will try to maintain them and keep them in great shape before we turn those in," Andrews said.

Houston said he was delighted about the addition of new carts.

"The riders will probably enjoy the new ones more because they will be quieter and probably not as bumpy as the old ones," Houston said.

Phil Olson, an accounting graduate student, complained that the current carts "are very loud and annoying."

Andrews said the older Froggie carts had a slower acceleration rate due to their long-time use. The addition of new carts will allow for faster response times and be more pleasant for all parties involved.

Blythe Bonan, a senior communication major, said the carts were inefficient and bumpy.

All Froggie Five-0 drivers escort students in golf carts.

The cart she was on was so rough that she was bumped off.

"I did fall off of a cart one time, and they are pretty slow," Bonan said.

Andrews also said that an influx in the number of students has led to more escort requests and the need for new carts.

The new carts will be delivered within the next couple of months.

Senior sheds light on mental illnesses

By LINDSAY TOMAINI
STAFF WRITER, TCU 360

For one TCU senior, fighting the stigma that surrounds mental illness meant hours of interviews that led to a discussion about mental health.

Mental Health Monologues, a series written by senior Jacob Buttry, was staged Sept. 12 as part of National Suicide Prevention Week.

Buttry, a theatre and psychology major, said he wrote the show “to foster empathy.”

“I developed the idea to create a monologue show that dramatically showcases the real stories of community members in order to provide an educational way decreasing stigma and increasing compassion on the topics of mental health and mental illness.”

Jacob Buttry created the show to start a conversation on mental illness.

Suicide is the second leading cause of death among college-aged students, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, so Buttry’s goal for this show was to shine a light on the effects of mental illnesses and how relevant suicide is in college.

“With the week focusing on suicide awareness, the main thing I took from the show and the message was to check up on people,” said Marielle Wyatt, a first-year theatre major.

The show featured nine TCU theatre students who auditioned for the roles before the start of the fall semester.

Each student would enter center stage in order to act out a specific person and their illness. The show provided the audience with an inside look into what daily life is like for someone who suffers with a disorder.

Wyatt said she auditioned for the show because the topic was something she’s passionate about.

“I would like to be an advocate for awareness,” Wyatt said. “I felt like the

The monologues told the stories of nine people dealing with mental illnesses, including anxiety, obsessive-compulsive disorder, bipolar disorder, depression, psychosis and addiction.

show was a really good way to do that, and I wanted to be a part of it.”

Buttry said he wanted the audience to leave the theatre knowing the facts about mental health issues and to inspire them to be more empathetic to those suffering.

“One of my hopes was that by watching the show you would see how there is no need to be ashamed of these disorders -- there is treatment out there and there are people out there wanting to help,” Buttry said. “My hope is that it can spread a feeling of hope among people who might be experiencing suicidal ideation.”w

Although the effects of mental health can be daunting, Buttry wanted the last line in the show to exude hope: “You just have to keep pushing forward. There are better days ahead. Rest now.”

ULA gives college advice to local high schoolers

By YULISSA CORTINA
STAFF WRITER, TCU 360

Members of TCU’s United Latino Association (ULA) spent time at Eastern Hills High School to talk about life after high school.

The discussion was part of the school’s new after-school program called Journeys.

Journeys was created for high school students who are long-term English-language learners, said Lisa Yanagida, one of the program’s sponsors.

Journeys opens up opportunities for students to learn about college, public speaking and etiquette.

“It’s a club that is really guided by the needs of the students who are part of the club,” Yanagida said. “We talk about goals and life after high school.”

ULA members spoke to the high schoolers and shared their experiences from their time at TCU.

They also gave the students tips on how to make the college transition easier.

Salma Juarez, ULA’s vice president, said that their objective was to inspire the students to reach for their goals.

“We’re trying to inspire these students to not only apply for college but to not let the fear of being a first-generation or a person of color stop them from getting a higher education,” Juarez said.

Rachel Morgan, another one of Journeys’ sponsors, said that she hoped the students felt the motivation to follow their goals.

“I think the meeting put a spark in a lot of the students and made them realize that they can do it,” Morgan said.

ULA members plan to meet with the students again throughout the semester to help them build relationships with college students.

“I think listening to all their stories made the message clear that they’re a family,” Yanagida said.

Soccer earns draw against Oklahoma State

By JACK WALLACE

STAFF WRITER TCU, 360

TCU soccer finished with a 1-1 draw against the No. 18 Oklahoma State Cowgirls in a double-overtime match.

The draw was TCU's first of the season and the first tie between the squads since 2014.

"Tough, hard game," head coach Eric Bell said. "Two good teams going at it in Big 12 action on a Sunday and it was hot. I thought the result was fair. I think Oklahoma State did a really good job. They are a good team."

Yazmeen Ryan has scored TCU's last five goals, bringing her season total to seven.

Yazmeen Ryan provided her team-leading seventh goal of the season with the late strike, giving TCU the lead in the 82nd minute.

Ryan's seventh goal puts her at 10th all-time in TCU scoring and has her at almost double her career goal total this season. The last five goals for TCU have all been scored by Ryan.

The Cowgirls quickly closed on the lead and tied the match in the 88th minute to force overtime.

"I thought our team battled for 110 minutes and gave ourselves a chance to be successful, and we did that," Bell said. "I am proud of that from that standpoint, but we have to be sharper in some areas from the soccer perspective."

TCU was outshot both in shots, 21-19, and shots on goal, 8-4. TCU is now 7-0-1 when scoring first and 2-0-1 when in a scoreless tie at the half.

TCU will travel to Austin for its next match against the Texas Longhorns. First kick is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Baseball opens fall practice, plays at Rangers stadium

By Riane Cleveland

LINE EDITOR, TCU 360

TCU baseball returned to the diamond last week to begin their six-week stretch of fall workouts, an "exciting time" for head coach Jim Schlossnagle.

"It's about building the team and teaching without the pressure of having to win or lose games," Schlossnagle said. "I love it."

The team is coming off of a 34-28 season that was highlighted by their 14th appearance in the NCAA Regionals in the last 16 years.

Although the team lost a lot of players to the draft and transfers, it returned 13 players and welcomed a top-5 recruiting class, including junior college transfers.

Pitchers Russel Smith and Caleb Sloan, who were out last year due to injuries, as well as outfielder Porter Brown, who was injured during the season, are back and healthy.

Schlossnagle said the returning players all have valuable experience.

Schlossnagle said. "If you look back on our best teams, the higher the number of seniors on the team that have played in our program, normally the better our season is."

Senior second baseman Austin Henry said the team is striving to be excellent every day.

He said he feels like a veteran this time around.

"My goal, since this is my last year, is to just enjoy it because this is my last year playing college baseball," Henry said.

Senior pitcher Charles King said that one of the biggest things the team had lacked during his tenure was leadership from upperclassmen.

"A strong leadership group helps everyone when you have that type of experience, whether it be two years or four years," King said. "There is a lot of wisdom that gets passed down."

During the six weeks of fall practice, the team will take part in two fall games, including a game in Globe Life Park on Oct. 1 against the Texas Rangers Future Camp.

Schlossnagle said the contest was the Rangers' idea and thinks it's a great opportunity for the team to play in a major league ballpark.

TCU Baseball begins practices with exercises led by strength and conditioning coach Zach Dechant.

"It'll be good exposure for our guys," Schlossnagle said. "I'm sure there will be a lot of scouts there and the Rangers will be able to heavily scout our guys."

The players are also excited to get the opportunity to play high-level competition.

Parking and admission to see the Horned Frogs in Arlington are free.

TCU is also scheduled to play Texas State at 1 p.m. on Oct. 27 at Lupton Stadium. The game is open to the public and free of charge.

Fall practices are open to the public and run Tuesday through Sunday until the first week in November, starting with stretching at 2:30 p.m.

Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Thursday, Oct. 3, 2019:

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★★ Try for an overview. New information comes forward that encourages you to think through an already-made decision. You could be questioning a problem in which stories vary because of anger and perspective. Tonight: Let Lady Luck lead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ One-on-one relating takes you down a new path. Use caution when dealing with a financial partner or agreement. Anger could become an issue when you're dealing with a child or loved one. Tonight: Opportunity knocks on your door.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Continue to defer to others and allow more give-and-take. How you deal with a dear friend might surprise a close family member. You might be forced to rethink your decision. Opportunities pop up out of left field. Tonight: Accept an invitation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Take a deep breath; rethink a decision involving your daily life. You could be a lot happier with a different schedule or another change. A conversation could become more animated than you anticipated. Tonight: Squeeze in a walk or exercise session.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ You can use your high libido energy creatively at work or with a hassle. Certainly, someone who makes your eyes twinkle whenever you see him or her senses your mood. True to form, you manage to have it all, if you plan well. Tonight: Act like a teenager again.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ You need to understand that when dealing with someone from whom you want more, his or her reactions could startle you. How you approach this person needs to be done with care, especially if you don't know him or her well. Tonight: Order in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ You could be tired of having to explain yourself when you feel that you're perfectly clear. Assume that someone could have a block on this topic and that it needs to be approached differently. Stay calm. Tonight: Make weekend plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Be aware of the costs of continuing as you have been. You might want to make an adjustment to your style and spending. You'll be much happier in the long run. A friend or loved one lets you know how much he or she disagrees with you. Tonight: Don't worry about the budget now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ You surprise others with your attitude. You might be changing how to present your assets, both latent talents as well as financial matters. Keep a sense of self-discipline and you'll have more choices later. Tonight: Your spontaneity delights others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Take your time when dealing with a personal matter. You often don't discuss what's on your mind. You might need to take a break or sign up for a yoga class to get distance from any agitation. You'll be amazed at the results. Tonight: Early to bed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Your willfulness emerges when you're dealing with a partner. You want to have your way, as does the other person. Perhaps putting the disagreement to bed and continuing with your normal interaction will give you some insight. Tonight: Where your friends are.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Your emotional nature draws others toward you. You often hear true confessions, although you might prefer not to. A friend could become a drag or quite needy. You might need to distance yourself for a while. Tonight: Letting off steam.

The Cyclones present football's greatest test of the season so far

BY COLIN POST

SPORTS EDITOR, TCU 360

TCU football will return to Ames, Iowa this weekend for the first time since 2017, where the No. 5 Horned Frogs went into Cyclone country and were stifled by a 5-2 Iowa State squad, 14-7.

"I don't think they're similar," head coach Gary Patterson said, comparing the 2017 team to the current team. "[Those are] two different teams."

TCU's last game at Iowa State followed a 43-0 win against Kansas. This week, the Horned Frogs face a very similar situation. TCU heads to Ames this Saturday following another dominant win over Kansas at home last week.

Though they stand at just 2-2, Iowa State's record is deceiving. Their two losses have come to No. 19 Iowa and an undefeated Baylor team by a combined three points.

"They've kept themselves in ball games," Patterson said. "They don't beat themselves a lot. They play better when they play at home."

The Cyclones have won their last four games against Big 12 opponents at home, which has become one of the conference's toughest places to play.

"Ames, Iowa—tough place to play, good team, second Big 12 game—[I'm] just excited for it," right guard David Bolisomi said.

To change that, TCU will have to stop the nation's seventh-best quarterback. Brock Purdy averages 332.8 passing yards per game, a huge reason why the Cyclones come in 13th in the country with 500 yards of total offense per game.

In Iowa State's 72-20 blowout of Louisiana-Monroe, Purdy broke the Iowa State single-game total offense record with 510 yards. The sophomore posted six touchdowns in the win, three passing and three rushing.

While TCU only gives up an average of just 166.8 passing yards per game, they have yet to face a quarterback of Purdy's caliber.

Deshaunte Jones has been Purdy's primary target this season. The senior from Cincinnati has caught 27 passes for 334 yards and a touchdown. His 6.8 catches per game ranks 15th nationally.

Jones is not the only pass catcher for the Cyclones, though. Tight end Charlie Kolar has been stellar thus far, recording 4.8 receptions (second nationally) and 62.2 yards (fifth nationally) per game this season.

With cornerbacks Julius Lewis and Kee'Yon Steward doubtful for Saturday, look for senior Jeff Gladney to try and limit Purdy's connection with Jones that has been so successful this season. Meanwhile, linebacker Garrett Wallow (third in FBS with 31 solo tackles) will attempt to stop Kolar from being dangerous down the middle.

First-year Max Duggan is expected to start for TCU, though graduate transfer Alex Delton will most likely be seen in the first half. The game represents sort of a homecoming for Duggan, who is from Council Bluffs, Iowa, just over 160 miles from Ames.

In 2018, Iowa State had one of the Big 12's better run games behind David Montgomery, who rushed for 1216 yards and 13 touchdowns on the year. With Montgomery now a member of the Chicago Bears' roster, the Cyclones have a much weaker ground game, gaining just 152.2 yards per game, ninth in the Big 12.

TCU will need big performances from quarterback Max Duggan (15) and running back Darius Anderson (6) to come away with a win in Ames on Saturday.

On defense, the Cyclones are led by linebacker Vance O'Rien, who leads the Big 12 with 1.4 sacks per game. O'Rien has posted at least one sack in every game this season, leading a defense that has given up an average of just 115.0 rushing yards per game this season.

TCU will certainly test the stout run defense of Iowa State, as the Frogs are averaging 275.2 rushing yards per game this season, third in the Big 12. The rushing attack is led by Darius Anderson, the conference's second-best rusher.

"It's amazing," Bolisomi said about blocking for Anderson. "Jet [Anderson] is a very very good running back."

Running back Darius Anderson ranks 13th nationally with 483 rushing yards this season.

Anderson has rushed for 483 yards and five touchdowns so far. He is currently on a streak of three-straight games with 100 or more rushing yards.

Receivers Mikel Barkley, Tre Hights and Taye Barber are all questionable to play on Saturday. With this in mind, keep an eye on tight end Pro Wells, who has caught three touchdown passes in the last two games.

Kickoff against the Cyclones is scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday.
